

O'Sullivan Charges The Officers Did Not Give Crew Necessary Orders

Deck Storekeeper on Morro Castle Also Says Highly Inflammable Cleaning Materials Were Used on the Stricken Vessel.

OFFICERS INEPT

Ward Line Attorneys Promise Federal Officials Full Cooperation in Determining Cause of Fire.

New York, Sept. 14 (AP)—Charges that officers of the liner Morro Castle did not give necessary orders to the crew when flames swept the ship and that highly inflammable cleaning materials were used on the vessel were made today by William O'Sullivan, a deck storekeeper on the liner.

At a department of commerce inquiry into the disaster of last Saturday, O'Sullivan testified, in reply to a question concerning the discipline of the crew during the crisis, that "there were not the orders."

"Had there been the orders there should have been, the crew would have responded," his interrogator continued.

"Yes sir," O'Sullivan responded. "Then," he was asked, "there was a deficiency in the officers rather than the crew."

The witness replied in the affirmative.

Dickerson N. Hoover, head of the inquiry board, then questioned O'Sullivan about the use of inflammable cleaning polish on the Morro Castle.

The witness declared such material was used.

"It was against the law?" "Supposedly," O'Sullivan said. "It was used commonly by the steward's department."

He added that the cleaning polish was "used commonly" around the bridge—this in response to a question as to whether "those in authority" were cognizant of its use.

O'Sullivan asserted that there was no pressure in the fire hose he assisted in playing on the flames.

Meanwhile, E. S. Attorney Martin Conboy, who yesterday charged that attorneys for the Ward Line, which operated the Morro Castle, were attempting to block a grand jury investigation of the disaster by concealing facts and advising witnesses, submitted to Judge Alfred C. Cox a memorandum supporting his subpoena through which the government seeks to obtain copies of all prospective witnesses' statements.

It was learned that Ward Line attorneys promised Federal officials full cooperation.

In Jersey City, Rep. Harry T. Norton stated that he is working on legislation which would make mandatory "a complete inspection of every steamship that enters an American port."

She said the legislation would be intended to prevent re-occurrences of disasters similar to that which befell the Morro Castle.

Passenger Testifies

The procession of witnesses, now in its fifth day, was headed at the start of today's session by M. L. McElheny, of Plainfield, N. J., a passenger.

Testimony was taken by Dickerson N. Hoover, assistant director of the Bureau of Navigation and three district inspectors—Karl C. Nielsen, John L. Crone and James Smith.

Hoover announced the hearing would recess about 1 p. m. today to permit the board to attend to "other matters," the nature of which he did not divulge.

There will be no session tomorrow, the next session being set for Monday.

McElheny, an elderly man with sparse white hair, said he retired to his cabin on C deck shortly after midnight and was awakened—"I know not how"—and saw a red glow on the cabin windows.

He went into the passageway and saw smoke, and upon going forward saw fire on the stairway leading from C deck to the next higher deck.

He saw a used fire extinguisher and "a few men" trying to get a hose broken out. McElheny said he helped turn water on the fire, but was driven back when the flame-heated water burned his bare feet. He testified there were other hoses in play, also.

Forced to turn over his hose to "another man," he went aft to A deck, but saw no hose in sight, he said. There on A deck he took a hose from a man and held it on the fire until the fire "made me dizzy."

"I held that hose until the pressure ceased," he testified, "and then I went aft to B deck. By that time the fire was coming up between the planking on A deck."

"I tried to go forward but was driven back. A lifeboat was being lowered on A deck and I climbed in. We were shortly after dropped into the water—about 25 or 30 feet, quite a drop."

"We tried to work around aft, but were unable to do so. We went around the bow and shortly after drifted away."

He said he had no idea of the time, as he was in his pajamas and without a watch.

"Were there any passengers in your life boat?" asked Nielsen.

"I was told I was the only passenger."

"Were any efforts made to get any passengers in the life boat?"

"I was the only one in sight. I

132 Entries So Far Have Been Received For New Road Parade

Kingston Automotive Dealers Are Making Plans for Large Number of Floats, With Additional Applicants Expected Daily.

Plans for the parade to be held in connection with the re-opening of the New Palis-Rosendale-Kingston Road are progressing rapidly and each day greater enthusiasm prevails. The committee is assured that a large number of beautifully decorated floats will be in line and that the parade will be of interest to everyone. Up until noon today a total of 132 entries have been registered and following is a list of the 78 entries received since the original 54 were published in Wednesday night's Freeman.

The Kingston Automotive Dealers' Association is planning on having a large number of floats and decorated cars in the parade and a list of the various units taking part will be available later.

The committee expects to receive reports from many more firms and urges that any who have not been contacted by the committee do so immediately so that a complete parade formation may be made up.

A number of merchants plan to have their employees join in the parade in their personal cars and the committee requests that such cars fall in line behind the float of the organization by which they are employed.

Incumbents Are Victors In Congress And State Of Union Strength Under Legislature, One Close Textile Strike Is Test

Retains, Still Incomplete, Cast No Excitement Over the State Primaries Held Thursday, With Most Contests in Manhattan.

SNELL RE-NAMED

Fearon and McGinnies, Macy Opponents, are Put Back in Running, as "Old Guard" Advocates.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 14 (AP)—Although there were no unprecedented number of contests, virtually all incumbents in Congress and both branches of the state legislature were re-nominated in New York's primary election, incomplete returns showed today.

Out of the 31 congressional districts, only one was close. That was a contest between Representative John J. O'Connor, ranking Democrat on the House Rules Committee, and James H. Fay, an Independent Democrat. O'Connor, a brother of President Roosevelt's former law partner, won by a small margin after trailing in early returns.

Complete returns gave O'Connor 6,424 and Fay 6,031.

Most of the contests were in New York city where Secretary of State Edward J. Flynn, Democratic leader of the Bronx, and Tammany leaders fought with insurgent groups.

Representative Bertrand H. Snell, Republican floor leader, and Representative James W. Wadsworth, an organizer of the newly formed Liberty League and prominently mentioned as a Republican candidate for governor, were nominated without opposition.

So were Senator George R. Fearon and Speaker Joseph A. McGinnies, Republican leaders of the legislature and staunch "Old Guard" opponents of Republican State Chairman W. Kingsland Macy.

Senator John J. Dunnigan and Assemblyman Irwin Steingut, Democratic leaders of the legislature, easily won their primary fights.

Outside of the congressional and legislative fights the principal interest was in the contest for the comptroller nomination in New York city. Joseph P. McGoldrick, appointed to that post by Mayor LaGuardia after the death of W. Arthur Cunningham, ran on both the Democratic and Republican tickets, winning the nomination on the latter but losing to Frank J. Taylor, Tammany candidate.

State officers and candidates for the seat now held by United States Senator Royal S. Copeland will be nominated at state conventions the last of this month. Delegates to the convention were chosen in the primary.

Apparently every member of the legislature was re-nominated, although returns were not complete in several New York city districts. The following update senators, who had opposition, won easily: Feinberg, 33rd district; Stokes, 39th; Warner, 43rd; Wojtkowiak, 49th; Cheney, 50th, and Kirkland, 51st.

In the update congressional contests, Representative W. C. Andrews of Buffalo won over four opponents; Carlton Fisher defeated former Mayor Frank X. Schwab of Buffalo in 41st; Representative F. D. Cuklin of the 32nd won over John G. Jeffrey; State Senator Bert Lord defeated Sheriff Charles W. Kress in the 34th; and W. Sterling Cole defeated three opponents in the 37th. Results in the 29th were still in doubt due to meagre returns.

Mayor First Speaker.

Mayor Heiselman, the first speaker of the evening, said that when he looked around him and saw the honorees that had been bestowed upon members of the police and fire departments of the city, and that when the State Fire Chiefs' Association elected Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy of the Kingston fire department, head of the state association, that the New York State Patrolmen's Association elected Officer Keresman head of the state association. Whatever honor had come to Pete Keresman, said the judge, was deserved and Officer Keresman was fitted to uphold the honor that had been bestowed upon him.

Mayor Heiselman called attention to the fact that largely through the efforts of Officer Keresman the State Patrolmen's convention would be held in Kingston next year, and that the local association was planning to hold a ball in the Municipal Auditorium shortly after the first of the year in order to raise funds to defray convention expenses. He said that he hoped that every resident of the city would get behind the police and help make the ball both a social and a financial success. In closing the mayor said it was not strange that Officer Keresman's abilities had been recognized by the state convention, but he was fearful that some international gathering might realize the ability of the officer and that he would be forced to move to Geneva.

Mayor Heiselman said his hope was that Officer Keresman would continue to be active in police circles and that he would "continue to be the good cop that you are now."

Judge Culloton explained that the reason why Mayor Heiselman had not returned from the State Mayors' conference as its mayor was the fact that Peter Keresman had been so busy with his own campaign that he had not found the time to run over to Jamestown and direct the mayor's campaign, or otherwise Trouble Has Become Universal and Really Boils Down to Fierce Fight Between Industry and A. F. of L.

RELIEF SHUT DOWN

Administration's Policy of Supporting Strikers Will End Probably as Inciting Unrest.

By DONALD CAMERON

Washington, Sept. 14 (AP)—Labor and capital mobilized their forces today as the strife-torn textile belt became the battle ground for what was expected to be a fight to the finish between industry and the American Federation of Labor.

The opinion was expressed by both mill owners and labor that the strike has transcended the bounds of a single industry and become a decisive test of union strength under the National Recovery Act.

Some cotton mill owners, who have rejected the arbitration services of the President's mediation board, said privately that pressure has been brought upon them from other industries to resist all demands of the United Textile workers.

"You know, we know and the union knows," one spokesman said, "that there is far more at stake than the welfare of the textile industry. If we give in, there will be a wave of strikes in all industries; it is a case of determining here and now whether or not organized labor is all-powerful."

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, has recognized the present strike as highly significant to the labor movement and has ordered all affiliated groups state federations, and city central organizations, to provide at once every assistance to the striking textile workers.

"This struggle," he said, "is of immense importance that all organized labor must do everything possible to assist in now eliminating the abuses in the nation's textile mills, out of which this tremendous protest has grown."

The textile strike will be placed before the American Federation of Labor next month at its annual meeting in San Francisco, representatives of the 108 international and national affiliates will be asked to devise means of providing aid, including financial assistance, for the idle mill workers.

The strike was interpreted as "a challenge to organized government" by Robert L. Lund, president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

"If an organized minority," Lund said, "through what amounts to open revolt can compel revision of laws while demanding support from governmental relief funds, then orderly government hangs in the balance."

The textile strike also promises an early shutdown on the administration's policy of relief to strikers.

It has been denounced by Henry I. Harriman, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, and other employer organizations, as tending to encourage industrial unrest.

Thus far no substantial number of relief requests have been made by textile strikers.

Employes' Committee Razed by Strikers at Morning Conference Held Today.

Will First Be Submitted to State TERA Who Will Forward Copy to Local Authorities and City.

The official report of the investigation made by State TERA officials of the dynamite explosion at the municipal quarry in White on Wednesday afternoon has not yet been received at the local emergency relief bureau, and as the report is first filed with the state TERA who forward a copy of the report to the local bureau it will likely be several days before the report is received.

The condition of Edward Huley and Angelo Cujak is reported as still critical at the Bonaventure Hospital where they were removed following the blast. The condition of Harold Longendyke was reported as apparently good at the Kingston Hospital.

Both Huley and Cujak may lose the sight of their eyes as a result of the blast, and their condition is considered so serious at the hospital that no attempt has been made to interview them regarding their version of the explosion of a quantity of a stick of dynamite which had been placed in a hole drilled in a large boulder, and which suddenly exploded prematurely.

Parent Education Institute Opens Here With Large Attendance

Opening Session In New Municipal Auditorium Is Attended by Members From Nearby Cities and Villages—Many Interesting Speakers.

The Parent Education Institute, sponsored by the Kingston Federated Council of Parents and Teachers of Kingston and the State and Local Departments of Education, Division of Child Development and Parental Education, opened its sessions this morning at the new Municipal Auditorium on Broadway with an excellent attendance and marked by much enthusiasm.

The topic for consideration by the Institute was "Parent Education as Coordinator of Schools and Community."

Following the registration which included representatives from the following places, and numbered for the morning session between 30 and 40 persons, the conference was opened by Mrs. Joseph H. Craig, chairman of Parent Education in Kingston.

Morning Registration

Kingston city. Cliffside Park, N. J. Highland, N. Y. Milton, N. Y. Albany, N. Y. Saugerties, N. Y. Woodstock, N. Y. Mt. Tremper, N. Y. Flatbush, N. Y. Mr. Marion, N. Y.

Mrs. Craig very graciously welcomed those who were present at the opening of the conference, an innovation in educational work, and introduced the first speaker of the morning, Mrs. John C. Eason, chairman of parent education of Ulster county. She spoke on conference objectives. Mrs. Eason considered those people already interested in parent education as rare plants to be nurtured and helped; a modest number of genuine aristocrats in education, wanting to be of the greatest service. Because, as parents think, so children think, the need of parent education that radiates to others, is great.

Mr. Van Ingen, superintendent of the public schools of Kingston, was the next speaker, extending cordially the official educational welcome of Kingston.

Mr. Van Ingen said he was sure there were many fathers—who really are parents, too—who would have liked to be present but for their most necessary jobs. This was the first time that Superintendent Van Ingen had attended such a conference. He told those present of the exploded theory that education ends with schooling. We know now that it ends only with life.

Among all of the educational work outside our regular daily school regime, Mr. Van Ingen considered in view of our shortened hours of labor, that adult education for parents was one of the most important means of making education a part of the lives of children. He considered their parents as offered for the day of vital and outstanding inspirational value.

Miss Peabody's Address.

When it came to learning what Parent Education was all about and how it could be carried on, and what it already means in the educational program of New York state, Miss May E. Peabody, supervisor of Parent Education of the New York Department of Education, was the one who told us.

Committee Returned

The committee then returned to their jobs in the factory, and an hour or so later the petition mentioned was filed with the mayor.

Still on Picket Duty

The picket duty was still on at the local factory where the petition was filed. The pickets were still on duty at the plant today, and the picket line was still on duty at the plant today.

Yellow River Rips Out Dykes and Huge Loss Is Expected in Flood

By The Associated Press
The angry waters of the Yellow River, ripping out dykes with a power that has been unable to be restrained, continued their murderous career today in the fertile valley which is added to the nation's misery.

Deaths from Hunan province have not yet estimated the loss of life and vast property destruction in the current floods, but reports which have filtered out indicate another major calamity.

Reports from Kaifeng describe as desperate the plight of thousands of farmers in Hunan and southern Szechwan where the river has reacted a flood of 100 million. Dykes along the Yellow River have been washed out, and the water has flooded the fertile valley which is added to the nation's misery.

The Yellow River has been in flood since July 2, and the disastrous flood of 1933 has been estimated at 100 million.

Improvements in the river have been made, but the flood has been estimated at 100 million.

Abandonment of the river will mean starvation.

'That Fellow' and Wife Having Grand Visit

Woodward, Okla., Sept. 14 (AP).—The colonel and his lady are having a "grand time"—in the words of Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh—on their impromptu visit in an Oklahoma farm house.

Colonel Lindbergh, "that fellow" to his host, dodged crowds even in the country 20 miles north of here, while his wife put on an apron and helped her hostess, Mrs. Homer Aitkens, prepare a meal featuring roast beef, mashed potatoes and apples.

"We're just fine and having a grand time," Mrs. Lindbergh beamed after their forced landing in the Aitkens corn field.

"There was nothing scary about our landing. We came in just as smooth as silk and have been getting along fine here."

Aitkens disclosed he had invited the famous fliers to his home without knowing their identity.

"He didn't tell me who he was and I didn't ask him. Then Mrs. Aitkens came around and told me who they were."

"That fellow didn't talk much but he sure packed away the victuals."

FARM INCOME RISE PLACED AT BILLION

Federal Aid and Increased Prices Chief Factor.

Washington.—Despite the ravages of drought and reports of great losses, the combined cash income of American farmers this year will exceed that of 1933 by about 100 per cent, or more than $1,000,000,000.

Present official estimates are that farmers will receive from the sale of all crops and livestock this year a total of $5,450,000,000. To this will be added benefit payments for average control under adjustment programs of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, amounting to $500,000,000, of which $150,000,000 was paid in the first half of this year.

The resulting total of $5,950,000,000 compares with a total cash income to farmers in 1933 of $4,850,000,000.

Although prepared by federal economists, the estimate of 1934 income cannot be attributed to any government agency. This is because the separate items going into the total must be approved by experts specializing in the various phases of agricultural production before being officially given out.

Emergency Sales Included
In arriving at the 1934 figure it has been assumed that proceeds from the sale of all crops and livestock in commercial channels during the last half of the year will be about $50,000,000 more than farmers received during the corresponding period last year.

Total income during the latter period was estimated by the bureau of agricultural economics at $2,330,000,000, so that the comparative figure for the last half of 1934 would be $2,922,000,000. To this is added $100,000,000 expected to be received from the emergency sale to the government of about 7,000,000 cattle and calves and 5,000,000 sheep at an average of $13 and $8 a head, respectively.

The figures for anticipated livestock purchases by the government are admittedly conservative, and the estimate of income from this source would be increased to the extent that purchases are larger. This is one of the items which may be changed before the 1934 income estimate is officially announced.

Addition of the tentative estimate of $100,000,000 to receipts from sales in commercial channels during the last half of 1934 leaves the total at $3,022,000,000. When the $350,000,000 expected to be paid out in benefit payments is added to other income during the last half of the year the combined result is $3,372,000,000.

Combining this with the $2,578,000,000 received during the first half of the year gives the $5,950,000,000 figure.

Marketing Heavier Than Usual
It is assumed by government agronomists that the sharp reduction in farm products available for marketing as a result of drought will be slightly more than offset by correspondingly sharp increases in prices for such products.

Government estimates of cash income to farmers are based on the marketings of 37 of the more important agricultural products normally making up about 90 per cent of all cash income received by farmers. Although the total of the 12 monthly estimates on which the calculations are partly based is about the same as the annual estimates of income from farm production, they are not strictly comparable.

Slight differences between the two estimates occur because the annual estimates of cash income are the total income from the crops sold or to be sold from the production of the year, while the monthly estimates are based upon marketings, regardless of when the crops were produced.

Although gratified by the improved showing for 1934, officials said it was no indication that estimates of drought damage had been exaggerated. There is general agreement that, without the $325,000,000 relief program, coupled with the alleviation of human distress previously inaugurated, many farmers from the Dakotas to Texas might face starvation.

Bridge Arch Packed in Ice for Contraction

St. Louis, Mo.—Possibly the strangest use to which ice ever was put was recalled here recently when the sixtieth anniversary of the famous Eads bridge across the Mississippi, was observed.

A speaker related how the last steel section of the arch would not close—being too long—despite the most careful engineering calculations in advance.

"The weather was warmer than had been expected, and the steel in place was longer than it should be," he said. "To reduce this length, they actually packed the ribs of the arch in ice. As much as 60 tons were used in one day."

It is a well established fact that heat expands, cold contracts, steel.

DOCTOR WORRIED OVER FAMOUS QUINTUPLETS

Callander, Ont., Sept. 14 (AP).—Anxiety hung over the home of the Doanases today as the famous quintuplets suffered from the debilitating effects of intestinal toxemia.

After seeing the children last night, when the malady started, seemed to Dr. A. R. Deane, who has attended them since birth, said he was "concerned." He added, however, that the intestinal disorder, communicated from Yvonne to her sisters, Annie, Cecile, Enlie and Marie, was comparatively slight. In older, stronger children it would be regarded as a serious matter.

The physicians indicated that he was most concerned by the condition of Annie, who lost 2 1/2 pounds in weight yesterday. Yvonne, when the malady started, seemed to be improved today.

Donald Barclay left on Friday in company of several other boys from Monticello by motor for Tuscaloosa, Ala., where they will attend the University of Alabama.

Mrs. George F. Andrews accompanied by Miss Dorothy Andrews and George Bass, has returned to her home here after spending a week at Perth Amboy, N. J.

Miss Bertha Kossar and the Misses Edith Robbins and Jeannette Mendelsohn of Brooklyn were week-end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Kossar.

Beck to Launch Fight On the Federal Courts

Philadelphia, Sept. 14 (AP).—Representative James M. Beck, spearhead of the Republican attack in the house upon "New Deal" legislation and trends in government, plans to shift the scene of his activity to the federal courts at the end of his present term in congress.

Beck, former United States solicitor-general under President Coolidge, yesterday announced his withdrawal as candidate to succeed himself in congress, but declared he intends to stay in public life and fight for "our form of government."

He condemned the voting of legislative power to the President and the "gagging" of minorities in congress, which he said reduced the individual congressman to the status of "one-four hundredth of a rubber stamp."

Well-known as an orator, author, and authority on the constitution, Beck said he plans to use his "pen and voice" to restore the Republican party to power and "save our form of government."

Republicans of the second Philadelphia district, which Beck has represented for seven years, have until October 2 to fill the vacancy on the ticket.

Dry Season Said to Increase Fire Hazard

The extreme dry conditions in the Adirondacks this year are due not only to subnormal rainfall for 1934, but also to the lack of precipitation during 1933.

Weather records at the New York State Ranger School show 13.65 per cent less than normal rainfall last year and thus far this year, including August, 15.75 per cent below normal. Last year there was a loss of 4.5 inches. There has been a loss this year, for eight months, of 4.24 inches which is only a slightly reduced rate from the average loss per month last year. The percentage below normal at this time last year was 16.34 per cent, so there has been some slight improvement, a little more than one-half of one per cent, which is not significant and therefore not enough to reduce the fire hazard materially this year. In fact, the accumulation of two years' drought has made the situation this year far more serious than the preceding fire season.

Guides about the Cranberry Lake section report to the foresters of the New York State College of Forestry that many of the trout streams are practically dry. The Raquette River was reported in August lower than in fifteen years. Low water records have been registered in Cranberry Lake for August both this year and last. Many fire rangers had more forest fires to combat this summer than normally.

All indications point to extremely inflammable conditions in the woods this fall unless copious rains come during the next few weeks. It therefore behooves every hunter and every visitor to the North Woods this fall to be extraordinarily careful with fire or to all probability the Adirondacks will be smoldering.

Temple Emanuel Services Announced

VACATION'S over. Good-bye to lazy hours in the sun... in the open... in the fresh air.

But not good-bye to that vacation vigor you've built up! You're not going to lose that, are you? Lots of people are, though. Because they're going back to the old habits of living and eating.

Go back to housework. Go back to a stuffy old office. But don't go back to the old fatigue. Keep up your supply of energy by piling in to milk. 2 glasses a day, at least.

Why? Milk contains practically all the elements your body needs to keep going properly. Proteins, vitamins, mineral salts. Milk's the most nearly complete food you can buy for the money. So drink more of it. It's good for you!

Shokan, Sept. 13.—Mrs. J. Sullivan of Brooklyn has moved into the William Shokan cottage near the Reformed Church.

Mrs. Nelson Bell is convalescing following an attack of pneumonia. Dr. J. J. Cosgrove of Brodhead and Miss Clara Lennox are caring for Mrs. Bell.

Adam Kirk, Jr., instructor of physics and mathematics in the South Norwalk, Conn. High School, was a caller here Sunday.

The Old School Baptist three days' meeting opened at the Olive-Hurley Church in the village Wednesday morning. The Lexington-Roxbury Association members are joining the local Baptists in these interesting services. The three days' meetings held in the old church for nearly half a century, in former years were attended by a large number of people from widely scattered sections.

The beautiful floral display of flowering plants on the grounds of Hearman Wendt a place of business in the cynosure of all eyes these autumn days. The riot of color at this point is in keeping with a growing ambition upon the part of householders throughout the twin villages to make the north reservoir boulevard one of the flower show-places of the state.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Stewart of Buffalo were the guests recently of Mr. and Mrs. Justus North.

Little Miss Patty Sullivan, a new arrival in the village, has become a member of the Shokan public school.

Funeral services for Miss Mary Jane Embree of Kingston, who died at the home of her niece, Mrs. May Giles, last Sunday, were held Wednesday afternoon. Instead of Tuesday as first planned. Miss Embree, a member of an old Krumville family, had been a frequent visitor to Shokan.

A real estate transfer in Olive on September 12, 1882, was that of a parcel of land in the southern part of the town from Elisha Oakley to Mary Palen. Mr. Oakley owned a farm of 20 acres near Olive Bridge. Several members of the Palen family resided in the Samsonville sector.

Thomas Spencer, well known trout fisherman of the north boulevard, was a caller on the west side of the reservoir Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Hartvig, who spent the week-end at their summer home in the west-end, report that their flower pack business this season is double that of last year. The Hartvigs recently have made several long trips in their car to different parts of the country in the course of which they were favored with a large number of orders.

Local farmers have begun cutting their corn. The crop this year is excellent both as to stalks and grain.

The Shokan school house now is supplied with running water from the deep well driven last summer on the premises. The improvements were carried out in accordance with a decision made by the voters at the May school meeting.

There was no preaching service in the Reformed Church last Sunday morning on account of the absence of the pastor, the Rev. August Pfau.

Albert Balch of Kingston was in Shokan Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Mildred Davis of Olive Bridge spent last week with Mrs. Justus North in the absence from home of her mother, Mrs. Alonzo Davis, who was attending the state fair.

The rock garden in front of Barracks No. 5 at the local conservation corps camp has flourished since its inception early in the summer and the plot now offers a pleasing sight to passersby along Route 28. In addition to the various evergreens and other shrubs, practically all of which survived the drought in good condition, the garden has an attractive border and several small beds of zinnias, dahlias and other showy blooms.

Farmers are alert to the possibility of a destructive frost any time now, such a one, for instance, as took place September 15, 1873, and in a number of places put a crimp in the corn and buckwheat.

Aartsen an Wagenen of Kingston has repainted the family summer home on the north boulevard.

The brooks again are flowing normally for the first time since last spring. The rise in the flow line of the Ashokan reservoir was not so noticeable as might be expected to follow a heavy downpour such as took place the latter part of the week.

Members of the city's maintenance force are engaged in widening the north boulevard pavement between Dunnagan's Corner and Boiceville village. Work also is being done on the Traver Hollow arch bridge superstructure which, as in the case of the dividing weir bridge, has crumbled in many spots.

Donald Elliott is a new pupil on the roll of the Shokan school.

The rough condition of the Hogsback Hill is a source of annoyance to motorists who have occasion to use the Ridge Road.

Plans are being made to entertain the delegates to the district Sunday School convention which will be held in the Reformed Church October 15.

Mrs. Edmund Gearon on Tuesday took her mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Gearon, back to the latter's home in Brooklyn.

The members of the Edward C. Bostock family have returned to Bryn Athyn, Pa., after having spent the summer months at their mountain road country home.

William Windrum closes his cottage this week. Miss Helen Gilmore has managed the boarding business at the cottage during the season.

Raymond Crutcher and family plan to return to Ridgely Park, N. J., this week.

Edward Leyder grew the prize tomatoes here this year. Many of the Leyder "love apples" measure six inches in diameter. "Ed" got his seed from Floyd Merriwell, one of Ashokan's premier gardeners.

The Shokan Home Bureau will meet Friday, 10:30 a. m., for an all day meeting at the home of Mrs. C. H. Weidner.

Barracks No. 1 holds the efficiency plaque at Camp No. 2 for the current week. Patrick McLaughlin of Saugerties is the leader of No. 1 group.

OFFICE CAT
By Junius

Man (groaning)—Nature wasn't very kind to us men.
Friend—Well, what?
Man—Well, it there was no way of shutting off a woman's tongue, she ought to have fixed it so a man could shut off his ears.

The best time to do a hard thing is to do it right now and get it over with.

Man (in the city)—It's not safe to flirt with this dancer. Her husband's got a title.
Friend—Titles don't mean anything to me.
Man—Maybe. But he's got the heavyweight title.

No man is ever completely satisfied with what he has. If he were the rest of life would be removed.

Visitor—Do Englishmen understand American slang?
Man—Some of them. Why do you ask?

Visitor—My daughter is to be married to an earl, and he has just called me to come across.

Americanism—Scientists studying to produce a better gadget; manufacturers making it cheaply so you'll wear it out and buy a new one.

An old gentleman saw a group of small boys in the park and asked one of the number what game they were going to play.

Youngster—Cricket. We're going to play a game of the United States versus Africa.

Old Gentleman—Are some of you going to black your faces, then?
Youngster—Oh, No! Some of us are going to wash them.

It's funny but you never hear of a man marrying a woman to reform her.

Visitor—That girl is certainly the picture of health!
Man—Yes, she's mighty well painted.

Agents who are selling the new-fangled cooling systems ought to visit the sun, where one or two are badly needed.

First Girl—So you and Maurice are to be married? Why I thought it was a mere flirtation.
Second Girl—So did Maurice.

Good manners is nothing in the world but a sane regard and respect for the likes, dislikes, comfort and feelings of others. A whole book on "Good Manners" cannot tell more than this.

Customer—I'm not obliged to take just what you've got.
Grocer—No, perhaps not. But you are obliged to not have what I haven't got.

Curiosity may have killed a cat but humans are tougher than that.

Judge—You have no money and you won't work. What good are you to my family?

Delinquent—Me? I excite sympathy for my wife and shoulder the blame for the faults of the children.

The Missus says she doesn't care what happens to the currency as long as it remains current.

An aching heart will drag a man down quicker than neuralgia.

Italian Officials Condemn Acts Of German Chancellor-President

(Italy has become a focal point of Europe, and even in France it is European diplomatic maneuvers as a result of recent events in Austria and Germany. William Bird, European correspondent of The Freeman, has visited Rome to examine and report on new developments in Italy's foreign policy, especially her antagonistic attitude toward the Hitler regime in Germany.)

Rome, Sept. 12.—Italy, within the past few months, has undergone a remarkable change of heart and mind toward the problem of European peace, and there can be little doubt that this change is due for the most part to a violent official and popular revulsion against the policies and practices of the Hitler regime in Germany.

The feeling of the Italian Press and public toward Germany and its rulers today is scarcely less hostile than it was during the war.

The words and acts of Adolf Hitler are treated with a sneering contempt such as once was reserved for the most arrogant attitudes of William of Hohenzollern. I have been astonished at the freedom with which Italian officials condemn the acts of the German chancellor-president, and the confidence with which they predict his downfall.

The belief is firmly held and freely expressed here that the overwhelming plebiscite votes which Hitler has obtained signify little.

"In a perfectly free election," said one Italian official, holding a responsible position in which he has access to confidential reports concerning Germany's internal condition, "Hitler would not poll 30 per cent of the vote today."

Another official, holding an equally responsible post, made the confident prediction that Germany would lose the Saar plebiscite next January. I was astonished to hear this prophecy, which until now I had heard only in the French foreign minister, Louis Barthou, is expected here for a visit in October. If the plan does not have to be revised because of political difficulties in France, the Italian impression is that Mr. Barthou will recognize the advisability of making some substantial concessions to Italy, both as to the status of Italian emigrants in Tunis and as to Italian claims to naval parity.

It is felt here that the French were deeply impressed, at the time of the assassination of Dollfus, by Italy's key position in the event of any disturbance in central Europe. The expectation is that France will endeavor by all means in her power to bring about a complete harmony of views on the central European situation.

Charges Officers Did Not Give Orders

have no recollection of seeing anyone forward except a man trying to swim a boat.

"Did you observe anything on the part of the crew's action?"

"I understand the crew did everything to save the passengers."

"The discipline?"

"I have no reason to question it. On the life boat the discipline seemed to be all right, but everyone seemed to be sick. It was from smoke, I gathered, from their remarks."

He said he "might explain" the reason why fewer passengers than crew were saved.

"Those passengers on a deck were probably removed to lower decks to a safer position, because A was the most dangerous. They were later cut off by the fire."

McElheny said that after he was in the life boat a member of the crew—he was an electrician—looked off his life preserver and gave it to me because I was a passenger and had none."

McElheny walked on crutches from an injury to his left foot while on the ship—"I don't know how I got it."

Queens Fireman Called

He was followed on the stand by John Kemp, a Queens fireman, who was a passenger on the Morro Castle.

He testified he smelled smoke as early as 12:45 a. m. (E.D.T.). All other testimony has placed the discovery of the fire at shortly before 3 a. m.

After being awakened, Kemp said he went immediately from his cabin on C deck aft and was hailed by someone to turn on a water valve.

"I had expected there would be iron discipline," he said.

"I saw who one around, though, I didn't think it was serious and I worked silently, as I had been told to."

"I saw no fire then, only smoke. I began ordering myself. I had no instructions—to extinguish steamship fires you need orders on steamer and marine construction."

"When a hose burned I went up another deck."

"I had expected officers around—I had read about the Lusitania and Titanic. I grabbed two life preservers and thought 'Hell, someone will think I'm trying to steal something.'"

"But there wasn't anyone in sight—not an officer."

"I got to B deck then. I saw an officer go up a ladder. He was in uniform and I have a lot of respect for a uniform. I said to myself 'There goes a real salty sailor.'"

"Blown by a Fan"

"When I got on deck I saw a fire that looked like a fire blown by a fan. I never knew they could get so much highly combustible matter on a ship. I thought they were steel and safe. I was only on board three days and wasn't familiar with ships, though."

"Someone asked me 'Are you an officer?'"

"I didn't want to lie and said 'No.' I'm not a marine man but I know that when I was a kid when I threw a piece of wood on the water it always floated away from me."

Hoover Interviews

Kemp was cut off by Hoover at this point and questioned concerning the time he thought the fire started.

"You are the first one to place the time of the start of the fire at 12:45," said Hoover.

Kemp said he thought that was right, that he smelled smoke then.

Kemp had to be straightened out in the matter of "port" and "starboard."

Hoover explained port meant left, and starboard, right.

The board was grinning broadly as Kemp expressed his ignorance of marine terms.

"My boss has been studying fires 45 years and is still studying them," Kemp answered Hoover's question as to the cause and origin of the blaze.

"So have I," retorted Hoover dryly.

Valuable Testimony.

"Your expert testimony as a city fireman, first class, is extremely valuable, and you were up as early as 12:45 and smelled smoke," Hoover declared.

"Did you see any officer with a gun?"

"No, sir."

"Then you lost confidence?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then you took command yourself?"

"Yes, sir."

"You came off on a fishing boat?"

"And that fellow running the fishing boat was good—the skipper of the Leviathan or anyone else couldn't have done a better job."

"I know, I know," interrupted Hoover.

"But that is for somebody else to learn about."

Evokes Laughter.

Kemp's vigorous testimony evoked the first ripples of laughter since the grim hearing began. Even the board grinned from time to time at his enthusiastic conceptions of what a ship's discipline and crew should be.

Before he was excused, Kemp said he wished "to thank the men in the airplane," presumably meaning National Guard pilots who spotted survivors in the water.

Seaman on Stand.

Charles Angelo, an able seaman on the Morro Castle, was next on the stand.

He said the first he knew of the fire was when the alarm went off, "at 2:45."

"That was by a clock in the fore-castle, not a ship clock?" inquired Nielsen.

"Yes, sir."

"How did you get off the ship?"

"I got off on the Monarch of Bermuda."

"Where?"

"Forward."

"Where was your station?"

"Back aft."

"Why weren't you at your station?"

"Because of the fire amirship."

"You came on deck at 2:45 and you could at no time get back to your station?"

"No, sir."

Angelo said he was called by a seaman about the alarm time the alarm awakened him.

"You were on the forward deck with a hose and there was no fire there?"

"I had to."

"Oh," said Smith.

Heard "Generator" Blow.

Angelo said he thought he heard a "generator blow up."

"Where was this?"

"In the engine room, I imagine."

"Did it make a noise?"

"Yes, sir. It was a loud noise—a 'boom'."

Angelo was questioned closely on the wiring and electrical equipment when he said he had been an electrician.

Electrician Talks.

The next witness was Joseph Peral, junior electrician on the Morro Castle. He was on watch from 8 to 12 before the fire, he testified, and the electrical equipment seemed in perfect order.

He was awakened by the fire alarm," he said.

"I was asleep in my room."

"I don't know the time of the alarm."

"What did you do then?" he was asked.

"I dressed and went to the engine room. Then I came up the emergency stairway."

"Did you see any passengers?"

"I didn't see any passengers at any time. The smoke was so thick you couldn't see your hand before your face."

"The whole thing seemed to be a mass of flames."

O'Sullivan's Testimony.

William O'Sullivan of New York city, deck storekeeper, testified he attempted to get amirship when he was called for the fire, but was forced away by fire and smoke. He then made his way to the bridge, where he could see the entire ship afire amirship.

"Did you see any passengers on 'A' deck?"

"One."

"Did you try the hose?"

"Yes, sir."

"Where was your station?"

"Seventh hydrant, sir."

He added: "The crew did not take their fire stations during drills because they did not want to disturb passengers sitting around on deck. One half the crew went forward and the other half aft. Another thing, the passengers never knew what fire alarms were."

"I take it there was not the discipline there should have been?" inquired Hoover.

"There were not the orders."

"Had there been the orders there should have been, the crew would have responded?"

"Yes, sir."

"Was there liquid cleaning polish used on that ship?"

"There was."

"Was it highly inflammable?"

"Very."

"What was it?"

"I can't place the name right now—there was a strong smell of benzine and it was a popular make."

"It was against the law?"

"Supposedly. It was used commonly by the steward's department."

"Was it known to those in authority?"

"It was used around the bridge."

"You say the stewards had plenty of this inflammable polish?"

"Yes, sir. I'll tell you how I know they would ask me for it. I would say 'No.' They would answer 'Well, I'll get it from the steward.'"

"Was any of this inflammable polish in the lockers?"

"That, I can't say, sir."

Following the testimony of Joseph Spiglio, able seaman on the Morro Castle, the hearing was recessed until 10 a. m. Monday.

Sanford Lectures
Included in State
Medical Courses

Local Health Officer Prepares Course of Lectures on Public Health Work
 Which is Included in Extension
 Course Offered Health Officers by State Health Department.

Dr. L. E. Sanford, health officer of Kingston, has been selected by the Albany Medical College to prepare a course of lectures on public health work for health officers in the extension course for health officers throughout the state for 1934 and 1935.

Dr. J. M. Sanford, director of the extension course, has forwarded a copy of the book, including the Sanford lectures, and written Dr.
 Sanford that he will note that in the instruction book has been included certain examples of new and original public health work done last year.
 The communication further states:
 "Inasmuch as you had an important part in the development of this book, you are being sent a copy of your copy of the book. The material you sent has been found very useful and should be a stimulus to those who are taking the course this year.
 Thanking you kindly for your cooperation in the matter, I remain,"

The course of nine lectures prepared by Dr. Sanford is along the lines of the course he has been teaching pupil nurses in this city for the past five years. The course consists of nine lectures, one hour being given each week for this purpose until finished.

Dental Nurses' Course
 The Poughkeepsie Training School for Dental Nurses has announced the beginning of a course on October 1 at 355 Main street, Poughkeepsie, N.
 Y., for the training of young women in the field of dental nursing.

The Guppy Fish
 The female guppy fish is about an inch and a half long, and is gray. The male is smaller, and so colored that he has been called the rainbow fish. He is covered with tiny spots in brilliant shades of orange, green, pink, purple and blue, accented by black spots and lines. The young are born alive instead of from the egg, and are gray like the mother. The males acquire their colors when they are about two months old.

"Little Stories for Bedtime" by Thornton W. Burgess

A QUEER BREAKFAST

A LONG line leads from Farmer Brown's barnyard down to his corral on the Green Meadows. Very early one morning Peter Rabbit took it into his funny little head to go down that long lane. Now at a certain place beside that long lane was a gravel pit into which Farmer Brown had dug for gravel to put on the roadway near his house. As Peter was scampering past this place he caught sight of some one very busy in that gravel pit. Peter stopped short, then sat up to stare.

It was Mournner the Dove whom Peter saw. His body was a little bigger than that of Welcome Robin, but his slender neck, longer tail and wings made him appear considerably bigger. His shape reminded Peter at once of the pigeons up at Farmer Brown's. His back was grayish brown, varying to bluish-gray. The crown and upper parts of his head were bluish-gray. His breast was reddish-buff shading down into a soft buff. His bill was black and his feet red. The two middle feathers of his tail were longest and of the color of his back. The other feathers were gray with little black bands and tipped with white. On his wings were a few scattered black spots, and there was one under each ear. But it was the sides of his neck which were the most beautiful part of Mournner. When untouched by the Jolly Little Sunbeams his neck appeared much like his breast, but the moment the sides were touched by the Jolly Little Sunbeams they seemed to be of many colors constantly changing, which, as you know, is called iridescence.

But it was not Mournner's appearance which made Peter stare; it was what he was doing. He was walking about and every now and then picking up something, quite as if he were getting his breakfast in that gravel pit. Peter couldn't imagine anything good to eat there. Peter was puzzled.

"Hello, Mournner," he cried. "What under the sun are you doing in there? Are you getting your breakfast?"

"Hardly, Peter, hardly," cooed Mournner, in the softest of voices. "I'm picking up a little gravel for my digestion." He picked up a tiny pebble, and swallowed it.

"Well, of all things!" cried Peter. "You must be crazy. The idea of thinking that gravel is going to help your digestion. I should say the chances are that it will work just the other way."

Mournner laughed. "I haven't the least doubt that a breakfast of gravel would give you the worst kind of a stomach-ache," said he. "But you are you and I am I, and there is all the difference in the world. I eat grain and hard seeds which I have to swallow whole. One part of my stomach is called a gizzard and its duty is to grind and crush my food so that it may be digested. Tiny pebbles and gravel help grind food and so aid digestion."

THROUGH A Woman's Eyes By JEAN NEWTON

"BACK TO THE KITCHEN"

"THERE are two kinds of women—those that men love and marry, and those who belong to clubs. Well, it's back to the spinning wheel for women now. And back to the kitchen. That's where women belong."

Pretty strong words those. Their author is herself a well-known Mid-West clubwoman and lawyer, and recently she was inducted as president of the Chicago Business and Professional Women's club.

"Every club woman and professional woman, young or old," she added, "would gladly chuck her career to marry a good man."

Well! What are we going to say to the scores of young girls getting out of college preparing for careers, who ask, "What about that? Is it all a fizzle, this business of independence, work, careers for women?"

The answer is the same as to any extreme statement. If the lawyer-clubwoman, Mrs. Leonora Z. Meder, really spoke seriously, when she said women belong in the kitchen, she is not to be taken seriously. Naturally every girl, career-minded or not, has in the back of her mind the assumption of eventual marriage. But if it is true that professional women would gladly chuck their careers for marriage, it is no less true that many married women think they would gain in a swap for careers.

Again, if Mrs. Meder is serious in her extreme statements, they would seem to be the re-action of something overdone. Perhaps the combined jobs of wife, lawyer, clubwoman have proved too much for her, and for the moment nothing seems so idyllic as a retreat to the kitchen. That is one point of truth that we can conscientiously hold up to wondering girls. Trying to take on all the jobs—wife, mother, and business or profession, is very likely to be too much. It's more than any man attempts, and it's hardly fair to a woman.

Careful With Decorations
 Japanese lacquer objects, which are ranked with the most perfect works of art ever made, are produced with infinite care, writes Daniel Simon, Virginia, Minnesota, in Collier's Weekly. Often as many as 20 coats are applied, each being put on at sea to avoid dust, and months apart to allow for drying and polishing. Incidentally, lacquer will not dry in dry air. It only attains its maximum hardness in the presence of moisture.

3 Nations Take Turn Today In Reproving Poland on Her Stand

British, French and Italian Fear That Embittered Poland May Block Russian Admission Into League of Nations—Obligations Chied.

Geneva, Sept. 14 (AP)—Great Britain, France, and Italy took turns today reproving Poland for her denunciation yesterday of the general minorities treaty—fearful, nevertheless, that an embittered Poland might still block Russia's admission to the League of Nations by refusing to vote the Soviet Union a permanent seat in the League Council.

The childing was administered by Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, Louis Barthou, French foreign minister, and Baron Pompeo Aloisi, Italian delegate to the league. They directed their oratory in answer to Joseph Beck, foreign minister of Poland, who had told the league that Poland henceforth would look out for her minority populations under her own laws.

Sir John told the league assembly that Poland cannot disregard her obligations to minorities and that "Article 93 of the Treaty of Versailles, dealing with the Polish minorities question, cannot be overlooked."

Barthou, referring to a general insinuation made yesterday by Beck, denied that France had profited by the minorities treaty to interfere with the sovereign rights of the signatory states and said he regretted that in his speech Beck had risked placing the assembly "before the menace of a definite decision, for other nations might be tempted to follow that example, imperilling the authority of treaties and the mandate entrusted to the League of Nations."

The French foreign minister said that France as "the friend and ally of Poland," hoped that Beck's address would not entail such consequences as Polish antagonism to Russia's entrance into the league.

Barthou said that Beck's stand put Poland in a position of not respecting treaties which Poland freely accepted "when she recovered the independence from which she was unjustly deprived." He subsequently corrected the official record of the speech to read "treaties accepted in exchange for her independence," thereby making the criticism stronger.

Then Aloisi joined in, saying that Italy found it hard to imagine what Beck meant by a unilateral denunciation of a general treaty.

"The Italian policy," said Aloisi, "is that existing obligations must be respected pending their possible future revision."

Beck communicated with Warsaw to determine whether and how he should reply and the assembly adjourned until later in the day.

Dutchess Historical Society Visits Here

Members Delighted With Hospitality Here and Charming With Old Stone Houses of Kingston and Hurley.

About 200 members of the Dutchess County Historical Society, the Historical Society of Newburgh Bay and the Highlands and the Temple Hill Association of Newburgh, made a pilgrimage to Kingston Thursday, visiting historical points in the city and also at Old Hurley. The majority of the visitors were from the Dutchess County Society.

At 11 o'clock the visitors arrived at Manor avenue and a few minutes later entered the A. R. Newcombe estate where they assembled in front of the Newcombe home and Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck gave an address on the Manor of Foxhall and whose manor house occupied a site near the present Newcombe house.

Following the address the members enjoyed a basket lunch provided by the parties and then left on a tour through the city, passing through the residential section where so many of the old stone houses are located. The assemblage passed the home of Judge Joseph M. Fowler on Wall street, the only house in the city which was not destroyed by fire when the British burned Kingston in 1777. Passing through Green street to Wiltwyck Chapter House a delegation from the chapter met the visitors, who enjoyed thoroughly an inspection of the house. Upon re-entering the city the trip was continued to West Street to the Senate House where an address was given by William G. Nash, a member of the Ulster County Historical Society.

An inspection of the Senate House and Senate House museum was made. Re-entering their cars at 1 o'clock the guests were escorted to Old Hurley, where they inspected the houses of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Elmendorf and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hinkley on Hurley street, and later visited Wylkoop Farms, the home of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Warren.

The visitors were delighted with the hospitality extended to them at each of the places visited and charmed with the old stone houses of Kingston and Hurley. At Wylkoop Farms the guests dispersed to their own homes.

In all there were 200 cars in the Traffic was handled in Kingston by State Troopers and mounted police officers who had been detailed to that duty by Chief of Police J. Albee Wood. The Troopers were under command of Sergeant John Lockhart of Highland. On the trip to Hurley the local police escorted the motor to the city line and thereafter the Troopers controlled traffic.

The committee in charge of local arrangements was E. L. Meritt, chairman; Mrs. E. C. Chadbourne of Stone Ridge and Mrs. Walter Steiner of Kingston.

It had been planned to visit the house of Judge Joseph M. Fowler on Wall street, but at the request of the Dutchess county pilgrimage committee that visit was cancelled.

Roosevelt Might Take Hand in Rhode Island Strike at Providence

President's Visit to Area May End in Intervention in Trouble-Some Area—Will Decide Saturday.

Providence, N. H., Sept. 14.—The President's visit to the area may end in intervention in the Rhode Island strike at Providence. The President's visit to the area may end in intervention in the Rhode Island strike at Providence. The President's visit to the area may end in intervention in the Rhode Island strike at Providence.

On the outcome of this conference will depend whether the President will attempt the first of the intervention, or go aboard a destroyer for Providence to take direct command of the strike situation. The President said should the Rhode Island legislature by any chance see fit to request federal troops, Dorn and Connor, both at Hoston, would be ordered to proceed immediately for a survey of the strike area and report direct to him.

In any event, the President said both the War Department head and his First Corps Area commander would confer with him tomorrow morning at Fort Adams.

In view of the quiet conditions now prevailing in the Rhode Island strike centers it was believed by summer White House observers that regular troops would not be needed.

McIntosh Apples Bring Big Prices

Prices This Fall are Bragging Cautious to Fruit Raisers Who Are Fortunate Enough to Have Apples For Sale.

With an Ulster county apple crop estimated around 42 per cent of last year, McIntoshes being about 15 per cent of the total, this fall is bringing big prices to fruit raisers who are fortunate enough to have apples for sale.

The market news service listed McIntoshes at $1.25 a bushel, a considerable increase in price for sales and offerings for McIntoshes during the same period last year.

One Milton grower reports an offer of $1.25 a bushel for 300 bushels of McIntosh apples, also 2 1/2 bushels and up, buyers' choice. Another Milton grower reports a sale of 300 bushels, three run buyers' choice, at $1.65 a bushel.

From Highland is reported the sale of 100 bushels of McIntosh apples, at $1.10 a bushel, and a sale of selected drops, McIntosh apples, at $1.25 a bushel.

A Columbia county grower reports the sale of 2,500 bushels of McIntosh apples, U. S. No. 1, 2 1/2 inches up, at the farm, gift crates, at $2 a bushel.

Million reports sale of Bartlett pears, U. S. fancy grade, at $1.65 a bushel; Seckel pears, same grade, 75 cents per half bushel.

The prices on McIntosh apples compare with prices of 90 cents and $1 last year.

The News Service Bulletin states that in the western part of the state pickers are receiving wages of from $1.50 to $2 per day, without board. There is no report of wages paid in Ulster county, but inquiries show that growers are paying from 25c to 30c per hour to pickers, who work eight or nine hours a day.

Parent Education Institute Opens Here

who made the matter clear, historical and with a forward look.

Miss Peabody told of the initial struggle to get over such an educational project, since the average parent was of the opinion that he or she was doing the educating of his or her children, so why should parents need to be educated. Yet the startling need of such education, being recognized by Dr. Andrus of the State Education Department had been crystallized into actual helpful work, especially grouped under the Parent-Teacher Associations of the schools of our state. Really, the Home Bureau, of the state had really stolen a march on the Educational Department, however, and had its Parent Education project, led by Dr. Wiley, which was proving most successful.

Nor is Parent Education carried on along any such dictation lines as is necessary in the education of children. With the parent, the main idea is "Come Let Us Reason Together," and already need of this adult form of education has been quietly coming to light through the monumental work of the State Health Department for children's activities, the nurses realizing the vital need of such parental education. One of the emergency activities at Washington includes Parent Education.

At last Parent Education is now definitely a department of the State Department of Education, and so is authoritative in the matter of instructors and methods.

In the idea of "Come, let us reason together," the talking things over has already led to a more abundant life where carried on. Miss Peabody said, in considering the world progress in education as everywhere nobody can change parents toward the best way of helping their children, but the parents themselves, and in this change they need trained advice and instruction.

The speaker thought one member of a Parent Education group, a mother, put it well when she said, "I used to be worried to death all of the time lest I might be doing the wrong things in the training of my children; making wrong judgments, etc., and there just was no fun in living. Now we are all 'getting educated' together, and we are all having fun every day of our lives."

Miss Peabody told how in any and every community, there is to be found some leader in understanding, all sides of education in its best and highest sense, and such persons are being almost drafted to lead in the Parent Education groups under the P. T. A. Where these groups have already been formed local resources have been made available, particularly the P. T. A., and it is the ambition of the Parent Education Department to have in every Parent-Teacher group a leader who can give the needed professional guidance to a specific Parent Education group.

This work is no longer in the experimental stage for after six years there are many places and educational centers where the success of the plan has been and is being demonstrated beyond the peradventure of a doubt. Miss Peabody's talk was listened to intently and was followed by a valuable discussion from the floor.

A basket luncheon, with hot tea and coffee was served by local P. T. A. members, after which the conference adjourned to afternoon, when Mrs. Arthur H. Russell, president of the Kingston Federated Council of Parents and Teachers, presiding, opened the conference. The main address was by Dr. Ruth Andrus, chief of the Bureau of Child Development and Parent Education. Discussion groups considering "What is Parental Authority?" How Free Are Our Adolescent Boys and Girls? "Satisfying Home-School Relationships," were later led by Dr. Ruth Andrus, Miss May E. Peabody and Flora Lee Sherman.

YOUR GROCER WILL HELP YOU KEEP HEALTHY AND HAPPY

Delicious Cereal Promotes Regular Habits

The right kinds of foods form the very basis of health. You need nourishment for strength and energy. And you need "bulk" to prevent common constipation.

Otherwise, this ailment may cause headaches, loss of appetite and energy. You can correct it, usually, by eating a delicious cereal.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN adds generous "bulk" to your daily menu. Tests show this "bulk" is similar to that found in leafy vegetables.

Inside the body, the fiber of ALL-BRAN absorbs moisture, and forms a soft mass. Gently, this clears out the intestinal wastes.

ALL-BRAN is also a good source of vitamin B and iron.

Isn't it safer—and pleasanter—to enjoy this food in place of taking patent medicines?

Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily will overcome most types of common constipation. Chronic cases, with each meal. If seriously ill, see your doctor. ALL-BRAN makes no claim to be a "cure-all."

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal with milk or cream, or cook into fluffy muffins and breads.

Remember, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is all bran with only necessary flavoring added. It contains no more needed "bulk" than part-bran products. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

By The Associated Press
Kitty Kills Copperhead

Porterville, Pa.—A five-month-old kitten is the hero of the Porterville family.

The screams of Dolores Marie, four, brought her mother, Mrs. Harry Portland, to the back yard. She found the kitten struggling with a large copperhead snake, only a few feet from Dolores.

The kitten killed the reptile.

No Flowers at Home

Philadelphia—No bouquets passed between Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brunetti, joint owners of a flower shop, after she brought him into court because she objected to being merely a "business wife."

She said Brunetti took the lion's share of the profits.

"He doesn't want me for a wife," she added, "he only wants me to run the business."

Judge Theodore Rosen ordered Brunetti to pay his wife $7.50 weekly.

"Dead" Man Asks Relief

Montreal—From the grave in which he had been docketed by a relief investigator arose an unemployed citizen of Montreal today.

To Alderman Dan P. Gillmor, K. C., he complained he could not get on the relief lists.

"Of course not," retorted the councillor, "you're dead."

The relief-seeker pinched himself and sneezed to prove he was no ghost. Alderman Gillmor stuck by his guns and insisted his visitor was dead. He read a report from the investigator of the unemployment commission, and with the dead man standing in wonderment, read the statement to the effect the applicant had passed on and was not therefore now in need of assistance.

Legal "resurrection" is expected to follow shortly.

Cow Hand Styles

Columbus, O.—Western drouth

cattle here for fattening have brought a style problem with them. Cowhands from the wide open spaces employed on a range south of here demand high-heeled boots to keep their feet from slipping through the stirrups. None of the shoe stores hereabouts stock that kind.

Small Change

Toronto—Jack Sayre was accused by a gunman who asked him how much money he had. With the gun pointing at him Sayre replied: "I'm sorry old man, I've only got a quarter to get home on."

"Keep it buddy," said the gunman. "You need it more than I do."

Beauty Contest—Men Only

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Broad shouldered blondes, husky brunettes and a sprinkling of bald-pates paraded across the stage of the Union High School in Turtle Creek in a beauty contest sponsored by Shiloh Court No. 45, Order of the Amaranth.

Officials of the contest had limited the entries to men. There were a score of entries, with a red-headed truck driver copping the first prize cup.

MENU FOR TODAY

Menu for Saturday, Sept. 13.

Breakfast: Grapes, cereal with cream, creamed dried beef, toast, coffee.

Luncheon: Corn chowder, whole wheat bread, sliced pineapple, tea. Dinner: Vegetable soup, baked sausages, mashed potatoes, apple rings, tomato salad, orange custard, coffee.

Creamed Dried Beef.

One-half pound beef, 2 tablespoon butter, 2 cups milk, 2 tablespoons flour. Place the beef in a frying pan, cover with cold water, set on the fire and gradually heat to scalding. Drain and return to stove, stirring and shaking the beef in the pan to dry off all the water. When this is done, add the butter to the beef and cook until brown (generally 4 minutes), stirring all the time. Add the flour to the fat, stir well, cook 1 minute; then add the milk. It will thicken quickly and should form a creamy dressing for the beef when done. Dust lightly with pepper and salt when on the serving platter.

Corn Chowder.

Two slices of fat pork fried out (take out pork scraps and throw away), 1 good onion, 5 potatoes cut up, pepper and salt to taste. Add 1 quart water. When it comes to a boil add 1 can corn. When the above is cooked, add 1 quart milk and 1 tablespoon butter. When it comes to a boil it is ready to serve.

Orange Custard.

Scald 2 cups milk, pour over it 1-3 cup dried bread crumbs and let stand until cool. Add yolks of 2 eggs. Beat to a cream, add ½ cup of sugar, beat, add milk and bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon butter, melted, juice of 1 orange and grated rind of one-half of it. Place in a pudding dish, set in pan of boiling water and bake until firm. Cover with a meringue made of white of eggs. Brown slightly and serve hot or cold. WHAT MAKES A GOOD NEWSPAPER?

IS IT SIZE? IS IT CIRCULATION?
IS IT NEWS? IS IT ADVERTISING?
WE THINK IT IS SERVICE

MAYBE you picked up your Daily Freeman today just to find out all about the big ball game. Maybe you are one of those who dive through five or six pages to learn how to bake a deep dish cherry pie. Perhaps you're a seasoned "editorial page" . . . or one of the thousands who can't wait to find out what "Barbara" is doing . . . or maybe you side-track everything else in favor of the ads—and you'd be surprised how many do!

We don't know what part of the Daily Freeman gets your first choice. But you can feel sure—and if you are an old Freeman reader you'll know without our telling you—that the part of the paper you like best is planned, written and edited with the same care it would get if it were the only part of the paper and you were the only reader we had to please.

The Daily Freeman is vitally concerned in serving you and your desires—and will be as long as you live in Kingston.

ACROSS THE WORLD OR NEXT DOOR...

News items in the Daily Freeman give facts, not opinions. They are meaty but concise. They are written with an eye to human interest. But they are seldom deliberately sensational—if we slip occasionally it is because reporters are human.

People like to read about people and so we write about people. There is an astonishing amount of news in The Freeman about the doings of folks you know. Full wire service brings you the events of all the world—Not a boiled-down rehash, but the whole story, clear and complete.

A visit to our editorial rooms won't show you the smoky, noisy "city desk" of the movies. But it will acquaint you with the headquarters of a smooth-working, efficient news-gathering organization.

THE FREEMAN IS DELIVERED OUT OF TOWN TO VACATIONISTS

Ever gone away for a week or a month? How your eye grabs for a home-town dateline! But Freeman readers need not depend on stray information for news of things back home. The Daily Freeman can put on its traveling clothes, too! Many copies joined readers on their summer outings last week. They didn't have to skip a single episode in the comic strips.

IF YOU'RE GOING ON VACATION

Just call 2200 and leave us your forwarding address. You won't miss a single issue.

FAMILY FEUD

Sorry, Mr. Brickley! We shall either have to quit printing the comics on the other side of the financial news or you will have to go out and buy another Freeman for Junior. Better take your copy with you when you do because the Mrs. is sitting with eagle-eye, just waiting to grab the paper herself. Comes of being a friend of all the family . . . you sometimes make them enemies!

SOMETHING NEW? OF COURSE...

Mrs. Crummit is showing off her new sports jacket. Or it may be a new-fangled tea cart . . . or a swell picture of Junior at $2.85 the dozen. We don't know for sure because the photographer didn't tell us and the lady has her shoulder in the way. But Mrs. Crummit is doubly pleased. There's not the hint of a bothered budget to trouble her. Something in her expression says she found it in the advertising pages of the Daily Freeman.

Did she save money? Of course! But that's nothing new for a veteran ad-shopper like Mary Crummit. She has saved more than her allowance. Time, shoe-leather and the disposition her husband's forever bragging about. Stole a march on her neighbors, too. (Not all of them — there are quite a few Freeman ad-readers on the Crummit's street!)

YANKS 5—WHITESOX 0

When realities get a bit tiresome or terrifying there's always The Freeman Sports Page to turn to. Did the home-town warriors trim 'em again? What's So-and-So's average? What about this new horse folks are talking about? What is State going to do this fall? When are the Sox coming out of the cellar? The Daily Freeman gives you all the answers with plenty of pictures to make matters clear. The stories are written by real aces who know your sports heroes and their foibles and can write about them entertainingly.

INDOOR SPORTS, TOO!

Freeman sports aren't all for the fans who haunt the bleachers, jump-side and paddock. Parlor pastimes have their innings, too.

HELPING THE ADVERTISERS MAKE NEWS!

You don't have to tell us that So-and-So's Sale of Dresses is news! The ad came in late but it's not going to miss the tiniest part of an edition in spite of the fact that we had to make the layout and pick him out some swell illustrations from our Meyer Both ad service files. The fuss our printers make about that ad would turn the city desk green with envy! Is she plated up and on the press? Right, Bill! Start 'em rolling!

CENTRAL 2200

It's hard to cry about a lost dog when you hear Miss Robinson's cheerful voice at the other end of the wire. But then she can afford to smile. She knows your Daily Freeman Want Ad will find Frisker for you before you're a day older. Want to hire a maid, sell a car, swap a fiddle? Remember the Daily Freeman will do it — and with fewer words.

Yesterday's Song

"MY DEAR," Hortense came quickly forward to greet Lavina. Her hands outstretched. "How lovely you look! You know, I'm perfectly thrilled at giving this announcement party for you. Everyone's going to consider it a brilliant match. I know. Besides, you'll make so many warm, serious and disappointed as my son."

Lavina's smile seemed a trifle forced.

"Thank you," she said. "you're great to have thought of it. Have you—that is, do the others know?"

Hortense laughed lightly. "Certainly not, darling! I wouldn't dream of spoiling such a dramatic surprise. I've planned to keep it until after luncheon. Do you mind?"

"Oh, no!" Hortense went on. "I made this an affair just for women because I couldn't bear to think of all the males in Hollywood overcome by despair right here in my house. I really don't believe you know, Vin, how you've captured hearts in these last six months. Why, you've become such a radiantly different person. Is it your success in pictures, or Felix?"

"I don't know. Perhaps it's just that I've grown into the habit of acting and carry it on away from the studio, too."

After a quick glance at her, Hortense casually remarked:

"Well, whatever's the answer, you've blossomed marvelously. I remember when I first met you, how forlorn and unhappy you seemed. I realized later that was because you'd just separated from Raoul. But time heals all wounds, doesn't it?"

"By the way," the hostess pursued, "have you ever heard from him since?"

Lavina's golden head shook a slow negative.

"Not directly. I heard that he gave up his job to come here when I stayed, but I've never seen him; he didn't even appear at the divorce hearing."

Beyond the French windows, upon the broad lawn, were spaced a dozen or more daintily appointed tables. Soft music sounded faintly.

"Oh, how delightful!" Lavina cried. "An orchestra, too?"

"Yes," Hortense said, leading her onto the terrace. "I thought it might be nice, and it's patriotic. They're a little group from the artists' bureau of the unemployment relief agency. Ah, there's Mrs. Fiberg; excuse me a moment, will you?"

Lavina wasn't conscious of her going, nor of anything else in that thronged scene save the one figure she had suddenly glimpsed. There beneath the acacia tree he stood, brown hair windblown, baton moving deftly in his long fingers as he led the musicians. Raoul! Silently her lips formed the name, as a brief wave of mixed feeling swept her. Then Hortense was beside her once more, introducing someone.

For the next quarter hour she had no chance even to glance in his direction. But, moving among the guests to exchange social amenities, her thoughts were constantly of him.

At last Hortense guided her to the table where they would have luncheon. It was within a few yards of Raoul and his men. She had been seated but a moment when from behind her burst forth the rich, wild strains of "Dark Eyes" played upon a violin. Her heart missed a beat, only to resume with a furious pounding that drove the hot blood into her throat and temples. He had seen her, then, for this was their love song—the one he had played that first night they spoke of love.

"Why, dear girl!" Hortense was leaning anxiously toward her. "You've scarcely eaten a morsel. Don't tell me I've been stupid enough to have things you dislike!"

Lavina smiled, murmured something in denial, and mechanically picked up a fork. An instant more and Raoul's instrument was still.

Hortense finally suggested they go indoors for demi-tasse and liqueurs. Lavina rose resolutely, and without a look behind started across the grass. She had heard the quiet clatter and rustle of departure among the musicians; shortly they would be gone and this fantastic interlude but a memory. Soon Raoul would be out of her life again and everyone would hear of her engagement to Felix Aaronson, the brilliant young producer.

She reached the portico last; the others had all gone in. An insistent impulse gripped her and she turned. Alone by the acacia's sleek trunk was Raoul, violin yet in hand. A mask of infinite and bitterness was upon his face. The deep gray eyes gazed toward her, brooding.

Lavina's sob was barely audible. Over the close-trimmed turf she ran swiftly to the man beneath the tree.

Miss Frost found Hortense seated by herself in a far corner of the music room, sipping champagne and smoking. "Oh, I've been looking for you!" called Miss Frost. "Here's the announcement you asked me to type. Will you want to read it now?"

"No," replied Hortense, smiling just a bit. "No, I shan't. Georgia. You may as well tear it up. The lady it concerns was unexpectedly called away because of some music—some music I took the liberty to arrange for her. She may be detained—well, indefinitely."

Officer Keresman
Guest of Kiwanis

Mayor Helmsman would also be serving as head of the State Mayor's Conference. Judge Culliton called attention to the fact that Officer Keresman was one of the first men in the city to agitate the taking over of the old state armory on Broadway and transforming it into the new public building it now is. The judge read a telegram of regret from Joseph P. Moran, former president of the State Patrolmen's Association, that he was unable to be present and extending his best wishes to Officer Keresman. Mr. Moran is now serving as president of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association of New York City.

Although Mr. Moran was unable to be present at the dinner he had sent four fellow officers from New York City to furnish the entertainment of the evening. The four officers were Messrs. McGown, Murray, Willis and Ward, and they put on one of the finest after dinner entertainments seen and heard here in many years. Officers McGown and Murray sang a number of songs, accompanied on the piano by Officer Ward, who was also an accomplished vocalist and rendered several piano solos as well as vocal solos. Officer Willis was the story teller of the evening and the yarns he related regarding the activities of fellow officers in the big city kept his audience in a gale of laughter.

The last speaker of the evening was Mr. Flemming, who said that Kingston had been signally honored recently with the elevation of Judge John T. Loughran to the Court of Appeals and the election of Chief Murphy and Officer Keresman to the head of two big state associations. He said that the city needed and the police force needed the type of men such as the guest of honor of the evening. Whatever honors that had come to Officer Keresman had been won by earnest study and constant effort in behalf of his fellow officers. The police officer of today plays an important part in the life of the city. He not only enforces the law but he must have some knowledge of the law. If he would succeed in his chosen profession he must study and sacrifice.

"I have known the guest of honor over a long period of years," said Mr. Flemming. He said he knew Officer Keresman before he became a member of the police force and that the honor that had come to officer Keresman was well deserved, and was a concrete illustration of what a man could do in his profession if he had the will and the diligence and the patience to apply himself.

Officer Keresman was given a rousing welcome as he was introduced by Judge Culliton. Officer Keresman spoke briefly and said he was grateful for the honor that had been extended him that evening, but he did not desire to take too much credit for himself for, he said, it was due to the fact that he was president of the Kingston Patrolmen's Association that he was selected as president of the state body. If any credit was due him, he said, the credit belonged to the local association. He said that he believed the credit for the new auditorium should go to the mayor and the city judge for when the matter came up at an American Legion meeting those two with Dr. Fred Snyder served as a committee of three to appear before the Board of Supervisors and urge them to turn the old armory over to the city.

Officer Keresman said that the tentative date for the police ball had been fixed for January 11, and he hoped and knew that it would prove a success. He said that at this time he wanted to express the thanks of the police department to the merchants and citizens who had supported the ball game with Newburgh, and that in closing he would renew both for himself and the local association the pledge of loyalty to the city.

The dinner was brought to a close with a parting song led by Alderman Zucca.

Officer Keresman is not only an active member of the police department but has been active in civic matters as well. He is one of the organizers and first president of the 51st Pioneer Infantry Association, and also one of the organizers and president of the city bowling league. During the years that he has been a member of the force he holds the respect and esteem not only of his fellow officers but the city at large.

Following the banquet, visiting members of New York police force were entertained by Patrolman Keresman.

Brothers Have Narrow Escape from Drowning

Boat Turns Over in Reservoir and Usher Boys Are Thrown Into Water—Save Selves by Hanging on Boat and Paddling to Shore.

There was plenty of excitement in the southern boulevard section of the lower basin of the Ashokan reservoir around 7:30 Thursday evening when little Robert Usher, aged seven, came running home and told his mother, Mrs. Stella Usher, that his two brothers were drowning.

Silbert, with Robert Usher, aged 13, and William, 14, had gone out about five o'clock in the afternoon, ostensibly to pick up food for their rabbits. The three boys went down to the reservoir and the two older ones went out in a leaky boat which they had picked up this summer and when they had tied up in a cave. They hailed out the boat and went some distance from shore, after which they turned back. One of them got on the edge of the boat and it tipped over. William held on to the boat, but Robert went down. When he came up his brother grabbed him and the two, neither of whom could swim, managed to hold onto the upturned boat.

Public Service Rules Market for Fruits For Buses Released, Effective October 1

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 14 (AP)—The Public Service Commission today announced new rules and regulations intended to guarantee the safety of operation of all buses with a capacity of more than seven persons carrying passengers for hire within the state outside of New York city.

Buses operating in New York city are specifically exempted from the rules. The regulations are effective October 1.

The new rules apply both to buses operating under franchises, over specially authorized routes, and those which do not operate under franchises. Jurisdiction over buses not operating on authorized routes was given the commission by the recent special session of the legislature.

This action came as a direct result of the investigation into the bus crash in July which claimed the lives of a score of persons. They were riding in a chartered bus which was not at that time under the commission's jurisdiction.

The commission has ordered that each bus must be inspected by its representative at least every four months. Each bus must be equipped with two independent sets of brakes. Both of which must be in good working condition at all times. Buses seating more than 21 passengers must be equipped with power brakes on four wheels. Owners of buses not now equipped with power brakes are given until January 1, 1935 to get this equipment.

Other major provisions relate to emergency doors, shatter proof glass and require a fire axe on each bus.

Silver Cup On Display.
On display in the show window of the Safford & Scudder jewelry store on Wall street is the silver cup which will be awarded to "Miss Ulster County" on Sunday next at the beauty contest to be held at The Irvington, Woodstock.

Drunken Driver Was Fined $50

Richard Mack of Stone Ridge, adjuster for the U. S. Fidelity Insurance Co., was injured in the chest and arm and the side of his car was damaged, following a collision between his car and that driven by Gustine Williams, 46, of Williams Lake. The accident happened near the New Paltz Normal School about 4:30 this morning. Corporal Baker and Trooper Klein arrested Williams and took him before Justice Ernest Schaffert, who fined him $50 on a charge of driving while intoxicated, and $10 on a charge of operating a car without a license.
